Investor trading DailyDow Jones futures were higher early Wednesday, as Senate Majority Leader McConnell introduced a competitive stimulus check bill. Moderna shares have fallen hard, dipping 40% from this month's high to a recent low. The charts show an opportunity for investors. How much will you get - and when? Wall Street has mixed feelings about penny stocks. These tickers change hands for less than $5 per share either attract investors with their high return potential or send them running for the hills, but why? When we say high return potential, we're not exaggerating. Deal price points allow investors to snap up more stocks than possible when investing in other more well-known names. What's more, even what seems like insignificant share price appreciation can translate to massive percentage gains. That said, there's a legitimate reason some investors are careful when it comes to penny stocks. The risks involved with these plays are very real problems like weak fundamentals or heavy headwinds as faint-hearted scares may be masked by lower share prices. So, how should investors invest potential penny stocks? Taking lessons from the analyst community. These experts bring in-depth knowledge of the industries they cover and have enough experience to come to the table. With this in mind, according to Wall Street analysts, we used Tipper's database to find two compelling money stocks. Both tickers boast a strong buy consensus rating and plenty of upside potential. Matinas Biopharma (MTNB), using its lipid nano-crystal platform (LNC) delivery technology, hopes to solve complex challenges related to oral distribution of small molecules, gene therapy, vaccines, proteins and peptides. Currently going for $0.87 each, many members of the street believe its share price presents an attractive entry point. Writing for BTIG, 5-star analyst Robert Hazlett points mat2203 as a key component of his bullish thesis. The therapy was designed as a liposomal nanocrystal (LNC) version of the broad-spectrum anti-fungus Amphotericine B. that allows for oral delivery of the drug. Before the Phase 2 NAKT test evaluating the candidate in cryptococcal meningitis, with nominations for the Platoon 2 set starting in the near term and the next DSMB data expected in mid-2021, Hallett explains that this novel is the first of many possible signs with antifungal. Also explaining his optimism about therapy, Hazlett said, there was the unanimous recommendation by the independent DSMB to move into the second platoon of patients of enACT, which is a valid occurrence for MAT2203, as peers progress through the CSF fungus clearance rate and the fungus count is evaluated by the absence of rebound. , and progress through enACT peers therefore indicate the activity of MAT203 and its successful crossing of the Blood Brain Barrier (BBB) fungal in CSF . Additionally, enrollment enrollment The head-to-head trial of MAT9001 has been completed as compared to The Anha-it, Amrin's Wasepa. MAT9001 is MTNB-free fatty acid formation of EPA and DPA, and according to Hazlett, it generates significantly higher blood levels of EPA than Vascepa. If that wasn't enough, the company recently announced a collaboration with NIAID to study a liposomal nanocrystal (LNC) formulation of Gidecevir of Gilead, for an oral formulation of COVID-19 therapy. We believe this collaboration further validates Matinas' LNC technology, Hallett commented. In line with his bullish stance, Hazlett rates MTNB a buy, and his $5 price target implies room for an astonishing 474% upside potential over the next 12 months. (To see Hallett's track record, click here) now there's a sentiment of other analysts turning to the rest of the road, Echo Hallett. As only purchase recommendations have been published over the past three months, MTNB earns a strong buying analyst consensus. With the average price target clocking in at $4, the stock could soar 359% from current levels. (See MTNB Stock Analysis at Tipperx) Taking advantage of an in-depth understanding of equilibrium (EQ) immunology and its role in disease, Equilibrium is developing innovative treatments for severe autoimmune and inflammatory disorders. With shares trading for $4.25, some analysts believe now is the time to pull the trigger. After the company's analyst day highlighted its clinical programs for anti-CD6 monoclonal antibody itolizumab, Leerink analyst Thomas Smith remains optimistic about its long-term growth prospects. During the event, EQ released individual patient responses with biomarker analysis, coming on the heels of recent positive interim data from the first three peers of phase 1b EQUATE testing studying itolizumab in acute corruption versus host disease (AGVHD). Going forward, the company intends to conduct dose expansion in Cohort 2 and 3, by enrolling three additional patients in each cohort, with top-row results from the expected trial in 1H21. Given preliminary data from the Phase 1b EQUATE test, it showed rapid, deep, and sustainable responses to itolizumab in AGVHD, in Smith's opinion. For updated data, all doses by day 57 had an 80% overall response rate (ORR), with 8 out of 10 total patients receiving a full response (CR). What's more, the therapy was also tied to the ability to reduce systemic steroid use in taper and dose patients. These results combine with biomarker data that shows that Itolizumab rapidly reduced cd6 expression on CD4 and CD8T cells. We believe these results are supporting EQ's plans to expand the dose in additional GVHD patients at 0.8mg/kg and 1.6mg/kg dose levels, Smith explained. If this was not enough, EQ supported phase 1b equal testing for itolizumab in systemic lupus erythematos (SLE) and lupus nephritis (LN) preclinicals and The research presented, and Smith hopes the top-line results in the SDE will come in 1Q21 and Results in LN in 2H21. For this purpose, Smith rates EQ One Buy with a $18 price target. Should this target be met in the year ahead, investors could pocket a profit of ~328%. (To see Smith's track record, click here) What does the rest of the street say? 3 buys and no holds or sells add up to a strong Buy Consensus rating. Given the $15 average price target, the stock could outstrip 328% in the year ahead. (Bloomberg) - Sheila Patel, chairman of Goldman Sachs Group Inc.'s asset-management unit, is leaving the $1.8 million division after nearly two decades at the firm. Patel, 51, is one of the company's most senior women and guarded some of Goldman's highest-profile relationships with investors around the world. He will step down from the partnership and become an advisory director in the new year. Chief Executive Officer David Solomon said in a memo to employees on Monday. Sheila has contributed to our culture, including serving as a mentor to many Goldman Sachs professionals around the world. Solomon said in the memo. I look forward to benefiting from her constant counsel. Patel rose to Goldman's highest ranks in 2006 when he was named partner within three years of joining the firm. Part of the Bank's Management Committee in Europe, he is overseeing the rapidly growing sectors of environmental, social and governance and impact investment. Before joining the asset management unit, he worked in various roles in the equity division, including as co-head of distribution in Asia and head of U.S. derivatives sales. Goldman's partnership rank has shrunk, with a number of executives long departing in recent years. This year, the firm has added the smallest number of partners since 1998, a move that can limit costs, as elite rankings tend to come up with significant perks. The asset-management unit is also seeing a tremendous change. Tim O'Neill, a key leader in the division since 2008 and partner since 1990 who helped transform the business into a juggernaut, was moved into a senior advisory role in recent months, while Eric Lane and Julian Salisbury were co-assigned to lead asset management as it adds more thick in merchant banking capabilities. The bank is seeking to boost its presence in private fundraising. Meanwhile, leaders in business including Quantitative Investment co-chief Gary Kropovka and Ken Brennan, who oversee the business working with pension funds, have announced their departure since mid-2019. Patel was promoted as part of Solomon's first major personnel moves after being named CEO on the firm's management committee in 2018, boosting the number of women in the firm's senior-most governing body. The rise of bitcoin has been one of the top stories of 2020. What happened: Bitcoin hit an all-time high throughout December, surpassing the $27,0 level on Dec. 27. With the rise in the price of cryptocurrencies, bitcoin's market capitalization has taken it past many financial companies. Earlier in 2020, Bitcoin passed JPMorgan Chase (NYSE: JPM) and MasterCard Inc (NASDAQ:MA). Over the weekend, Bitcoin's market capitalization passed $500 billion and made it more valuable than Visa Inc.'s (NYSE:V). Related Links: Bitcoin's Resurgence To Play 8 Stocks It's Important: According to AssetDash, Bitcoin is now the 11th most valuable asset by market cap with a $500-billion valuation. Bitcoin has passed four companies on the list in the month of December. The list is further led by Berkshire Hathaway (NYSE: BRK-A) (NYSE: BRK-B), led by veteran investor Warren Buffett. Omaha's Oracle has been a vocal Bitcoin bear. Buffett once said that Bitcoin may have paid rat poison. In terms of cryptocurrencies, generally, I can say with almost certainty that they will come to a worse end. If I can buy a five-year-old on every one of the cryptocurrencies, I will be happy to do so but I will never reduce the price of a penny. Buffett told CNBC in 2018. Berkshire Hathaway ranks 10th on the asset list with a market cap of $535.7 million. With 18,583,275 bitcoins, the price would be required $28,827 to pass the value of Berkshire Hathaway. With the continued growth of additional Bitcoin mining and cryptocurrency, this could happen very soon. Apple Inc. (NASDAQ: AAPL) topped the AssetDash list with a market cap of $2.3 trillion. Alibaba Group (NYSE: BABA) ranks eighth with a cap of $602,000, and has fallen three places in the month of December. Price action: Bitcoin was trading at $26,714.06 last Check Monday. Return wise, Novavax (NVAX) has undoubtedly been the most successful coronavirus stock of them all, hitting an amazing 2920% with a 2020 gain. However, heading into the final stretch of the year, vaccine specialist COVID-19 vaccine candidate NVX-CoV2373 is in danger of getting cut adrift from the competition. Both Moderna's (MRNA) mRNA-1273 and Pfizer(PFE)/BioNTech (BNTX) BNT162b2, have already been granted emergency access authorization and are already being distributed in the U.S. and around the world. But now Novavax can finally work toward closing the gap. At long last, on Monday, the company announced the U.S. and Mexico Phase 3 study lift-off. Prevention-19 tests evaluating NVX-CoV2373 has been launched in 115 locations and 30,0 participants are expected to be enrolled in the program. With over 25% of participants over the age of 65, and black/African American patients making up an additional 15%, the study is specifically designed to assess the vaccine candidate's impact on a population as diverse as possible. Novavax is already expected to readout an interim data with a fully enrolled Phase 3 clinical trial in the process in the UK shortly. The company may lag behind the competition, but its offering merits the difference from the unique vaccines it already has available. Unlike Moderna's vaccine that should be placed in a freezer and pfizer/biotech offering, which requires even more extreme ultra-cold temperatures, NVX-CoV2373 can be stored in refrigerators. B Relay analyst Mayank Mamtani says interim data readout before the U.S. study is likely in early 2Q21. The analyst believes Novavax' offer may still be a starring role in the global distribution of Covid-19 vaccines and tells investors to buy the recent dip. We remain favorably biased towards our bull case scenario of NVAX's best-in-class immunogenicity, translating into 90% + VE and have differentiated target product profiles in terms of responses to '2373 status' as a preferred global vaccine solution, said the 5-star analyst. We believe NVAX attributed AZ's positive comments about 12/28 equity weakness (-10%), largely AZD1222 is being reviewed this week by UK regulators, a compelling purchase Presents. Accordingly, Matini's rating remains a buy, while the $223 price target remains. With a gain of 85% to be in the cards, the target must be met over the next 12 months. (To see Mamtani's track record, click here) Buy all 5 other current analyst review rate Novavax one, except selling 1. NVEX's moderate buy consensus rating is backed by a $183.20 average price target, meaning there has been a potential increase of 52% in the coming year.
